

PERE HYACINTHE.

The Distinguished French Preacher Arrives in the Capital City.

Description of Himself and His Family—His Mission in This Country.

The Rev. Charles Loyson, who is more widely known as Pere Hyacinthe, arrived in this city yesterday morning, and is the guest of his stepson, Mr. Ralph Merriam, at No. 1345 Fourteenth street northwest. Mr. Merriam is the son of Mrs. Loyson by a former husband, is an architect by profession, and is employed in the office of the supervising architect of the treasury department.

He has as guests, beside the distinguished theologian, his mother, Mrs. Loyson, and her son, Paul Loyson.

Pere Hyacinthe is a man, rather under the medium size, with a massive, well-formed head, somewhat bald, but well fringed with silky white hair, eyes bright and clear, a round, full countenance, with deep lines about the mouth, and a long, flowing beard, whose whitened color gives him a decidedly patriarchal appearance. He is inclined to be stout, but his dress is well distributed, and gives him the appearance of slenderness.

Mrs. Loyson is a woman slightly above the average height, full bodied, indicating generous living, as does the appearance of her husband, and, although past the meridian of life, still retains hair of glossy blackness and eyes the brightness of which is not in any degree dimmed. Her face has a kindly, maternal expression, and goodness and purity, as well as strength of character, are stamped upon her features. She always dresses in black, usually cashmere, with a plain white collar at the neck, and her only ornament is a plain silver cross, which she wears near her breast.

Paul, the son, is a remarkably bright youth, the very image of his father in build, but with the black hair and eyes of his mother. He is 10 years old, his last birthday having been the Friday week. He speaks both English and French fluently, is remarkably quick in his perception, and evinces an intellect beyond the average of boys of his age.

Pere Hyacinthe does not speak English at all, and whatever of interviewing is done must be accomplished through the medium of others unless the interrogator speaks that language. He intends remaining in the United States for six months, and has made arrangements to do so as early as the first of November. He will stay in Washington for ten days or two weeks. Whether he will preach anywhere while in this city is not yet determined. He will, however, give a series of lectures throughout the country, explaining his views of the reforms which should be made within the Catholic church, for he says he is still a Catholic, believing in the cardinal principles of the church, but objecting to the changes made by Rome.

Why is it that he has not learned English? asked The Republican reporter of Mr. Merriam. "His voice is musical and clear, and he would make a most effective speaker of our language."

"Probably because he is a great orator, and you never knew a great orator to speak in two languages. He is a thorough master of his own language, and can express his thoughts with wonderful eloquence and effect. To try to translate them into a foreign tongue would hamper him, and instead of speaking with inspiration he would have to go by mathematical rule. No, no really great orator ever spoke in two languages."

FLAGS AND HISTORIES.

The Captured Confederate Banners to Be Packaged Away Out of Sight.

The hundreds of captured confederate battle flags, which were exhibited for a long time at the ordnance department museum, have been transferred for safe keeping to the Adjutant General's department. While on exhibition this collection formed one of the most interesting exhibits at the national capital. They are now packed away, which fact prompted a war department official to remark last evening that they were destined to become the prey of the destructive moth or mildew unless they were again exposed to light and air. While in the museum the flags were in the scorching rays of war were hung about the capacious room. It is probable that Secretary Lincoln will be requested to again hang these banners on the inner walls of some public museum.

Among the number are flags with tragic histories. The palmetto battle flag of a South Carolina regiment is said to have been captured from a remnant of the regiment who had piled up their own dead as earthworks, and were decimated by the fire from behind that ghastly protection. A round of dead bodies was piled about the dead to keep it upright. The flag of a Virginia regiment was finally captured after seven men had been killed about it. One famous black flag which was hoisted over Fort Fisher is also there, and the handsome blue silk banner of the Norfolk Light Artillery Blues. A handsome United States flag was recaptured at the fall of Richmond. The confederates found it wrapped about the body of an officer of a New York regiment, who was shot while trying to escape with the flag he had received with a speech not very long before from the ladies of his native town. The remainder of the vast collection are of equal interest.

A New Furniture Store. Mr. Wash. B. Williams, the enterprising furniture dealer, has just opened his new store at 317 Seventh street northwest, and invites the public to inspect the full and complete stock of furniture, carpets, drapery, painting, and household goods of all descriptions. The new store is centrally located, and extends from Seventh street back about 100 feet, there being also an entrance and store room on D street. The stock in the store is arranged in perfect order, and all that is dear to the housewife's heart is placed in the most attractive form. A visit to the store is worth the time, and much that is to be seen there can be seen nowhere else. Mr. Williams has but recently received a full assortment of exquisite design and finish, and these can be purchased at the lowest figure. The store itself is a model of beauty, and everywhere is seen traces of careful and excellent taste. Upon the walls are hung the most attractive of rugs and fabrics, arranged with artistic accuracy and taste, while placed in convenient positions are the heavier wares, such as sideboards, chairs, tables, ottomans, divans, sofas, and other household furniture of superior material. His warehouse contains a reserve stock of all that is to be seen in the store. Mr. Williams will, no doubt, be successful in his new venture, and he but solicits a visit from those furnishing their houses.

Appeals in Patent Cases. The rules governing appeals in patent cases before the interior department have been amended as follows:

Appeals from decisions of the commissioners of patents upon interlocutory motions or orders will not be considered by the interior department before the final determination of the proceedings in the course of which they are made. Objections to decisions upon such motions or orders may be made in record, and will be considered by the secretary if appeal be taken from such final determination.

ODD FELLOWS' ANNIVERSARY.

Celebration of the Founding of the Colored Branch of the Order in This District.

The thirty-seventh anniversary of the establishment of the Grand United Order of Colored Odd Fellows in the district was celebrated yesterday by an extensive procession in the afternoon, and a banquet and levee at night. The procession formed on Eleventh street northwest, south of Pennsylvania avenue, about 120 o'clock, and moved in the following order: Messrs. W. C. Cowin, John A. Simms, C. H. Shorter, C. F. Mosely, and R. J. Grant in carriages; mounted police; chief marshal, Albert L. Johnson; a White Light and J. H. Hawkins, left and right; chief of staff; William Howard, secretary, and about forty assistant marshals, all mounted; National brass band, Robert Kinney, leader, and the following lodges: Green Mountain, commanded by C. H. Gibbons and McQuadr; Golden Wreath, commanded by S. E. Jones, S. Werrieks, and T. Clifford; Social, commanded by C. H. Marshall and N. F. Grantham; Simon, Mount Oliver, United Brotherhood, commanded by B. Wood and E. Homes; Potomac Union, J. C. McCrammell, commanded by J. W. Butler and Wm. Trice; Free Grace, Old Oak, commanded by S. H. Wilkins and S. Minor; Sandy Spring brass band; O. K. Manning, commanded by E. Butler and J. B. R. Anderson, Star of the West, commanded by George Hanks, H. E. Jenifer, and W. J. Gordon; Peter Ogden, commanded by S. Willis and Wm. Grant; Bloom of Youth, commanded by J. H. Rogers and J. Robinson; Rockville brass band; Eastern Star, commanded by W. P. Hall and J. A. Boston; Columbia, commanded by M. Honerty, F. Brown, and Wm. Twines; John F. Cook, commanded by J. H. Hawkins and J. Ross, and Harmony lodge, of Alexandria, commanded by William Crest. The end of the procession was brought up by a long line of carriages containing some of the principal officers of the order.

Over 1,000 men were in line and the route followed was along Pennsylvania avenue west to Georgetown, thence east along P street to Dupont circle, along M street to Third, down to Pennsylvania avenue to Eleventh, where ranks were broken and the members of the different lodges repaired to Willard hall to make preparations for the levee and banquet. The entire arrangement of the line and its general appearance were very creditable, and baring the officiousness of several of the marshals the anniversary parade was a success.

As the procession neared Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue a difficulty occurred between several officious assistant marshals and the driver of a Hansom cab. The latter tried to keep out of the way by hugging the curb, and while so engaged the marshals galloped up and seized his horse, forcing him and the vehicle into the line. Intense excitement followed, and a riot would have occurred had not Officer Crump intervened and arrested the driver, E. Wilson, and three of the marshals, John T. Rowley, John Ford, and Harris Mopkin. They were locked up at the K Street station. Bystanders state that the driver was not to blame.

Jesse Murphy, the youngest of four brothers, all notorious colored roughs, was collared by Officer Nicholson for attempting to shoot a man. A dangerous looking pistol was found in his pocket. Officer Cunningham arrested a short negro named Gus Williams while trying to pick a woman's quarrel. A lively fight between two jet black colored women caused a stampede in the line at Sixteenth and M streets. Sergt. Buell arrested one of the half-painted dames, and the other escaped with her escort who held her bonnet during the melee. Two negro roughs named J. Smith and C. Johnson were arrested near Thirtieth street, on Pennsylvania avenue, by Officer Nicholson for acting in a very rude and disorderly manner. They were seen to enter a cigar and razor away while being taken to the station house. Several stones were thrown into the line at Twentieth street by colored roughs on the sidewalks.
